Student project/thesis supervision

- In my time at Stanford (2018–2021), I supervised various undergraduate projects (for summer research, “writing in the major”, and honours theses), for students from Stanford and MIT. Some of these resulted in publications.
- Matin Ansari pour (Sharif), Zach Hunter (Oxford), Viktor Imrisek (Stanford), Iwo Pilecki–Silva (Cambridge), and Arjun Ranganathan (IISER Pune) did scientific internships at ISTA under my supervision in 2021–2024.
- For the ISTA graduate school, I have supervised many 2-month “rotation projects” giving graduate students a taste of research in combinatorics (Ali Asadi, Illia Babiienko, Seyda Köse, Christoph Günther, Filippo Quattrocchi, Florestan Brunck, Yiting Wang, Yijie Diao, Illya Koval, Roodabeh Safavi, Lena Wurzinger, Pavel Arkhipov, Farhood Rostamkhani, Assylbek Olzhabayev, Assaf Lev-Ran, Alex Grebennikov, Lenka Kopfova).

Outreach

- I participated in interviews with the science writers at ISTA and with Quanta Magazine, regarding my resolution of Erdős’ conjecture on high-girth Steiner triple systems. This resulted in the publication of two general-audience articles on my research.
- I participated in interviews for the Geistesblitz column in der Standard, and the Junge Forschung column in die Presse (these are two Austrian newspapers) about my general research directions.
- I wrote a general-audience expository article about the polynomial Littlewood–Offord problem, for the newsletter of the Austrian Mathematical Society (Internationale Mathematische Nachrichten).
- I gave introductory lectures about Ramsey theory and the probabilistic method for high school students on several different occasions (at a 2022 training camp for the Austrian, Czech, Slovak, Polish and Ukrainian teams for the International Mathematics Olympiad, and at summer schools for Ukrainian high school students in 2022 and 2023).
- I gave a general-audience Think and Drink seminar for the ISTA community in 2022.
